

Lupine Friar'
Martin Potter

The weathered paw must have felt
Rough on the palm but less than a stigma;
No tooth marks this time though,
And a new commitment to ask and receive
From the townsfolk what was seized before,
And the grey habit didn't need to be Assumed, already flourishing on the skin.